About Sanidumps.com

The web site www.sanidumps.com was created in 2006 by founder John Clarke with the explicit goal of improving the lifestyle of RVers and helping the environment. Today the site lists over 18,000 dump stations in the USA, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Mexico, Central America and a few other countries.

The Sanidumps team includes Chris Clarke who helps John managing the listings, KC Chavda who handles the marketing, sales and RV presentations, Karen Chavda who handles all the editing of RV articles while keeping us organized in general. John Clarke is our resident IT expert and brings additional technical expertise in fixing common RV issues such as 12 volt DC electrical systems and solar power. He is also very knowledgeable about RVing during winter climates.

As RVer's ourselves, we try to make as much time as possible for RVing and to meeting fellow RVers in order to exchange ideas, best practices and down a few cold ones.

The year 2020 has been a very successful one. We updated many dump sites with GPS coordinates, and our growth of RVers using our website to find dump stations continues! Many of our updates resulted from your inputs, so thank you to all who sent us those updates. As a token of our appreciation, we drew 12 names for a free e-Book for their choice. We will continue this tradition in 2021 so keep sending us those updates.

Who knows, you could be the next winner! Over 156 books have been won.

Dump Stations in United States of America

What is a Dump Station?

> "properly designed and constructed facility intended to receive the discharge of wastewater from any holding tank or similar device installed in any recreational vehicle, and having a means of discharging the contents, in an acceptable way, to an approved wastewater disposal system"

As you travel from one place to another; you will find this one meaning can have many ways of being described: sani-dump station, sani dumps, sanidumps, sani stations, rv dump stations, sani-station, sanitary station, sewage disposal, station de vidange, descargas del sani, décharges de sani, depositi di sani, dumps do sani, dump points, trailer dump stations, motorhome transfer points, and, of course, dump station.

Please be nice to our environment and dump at a proper facility.

Our standard for Big Rig Friendly is a 45 foot class A towing a trailer that does not have to be disconnect or back up when visiting a location.

About the Listings

This e-Book contains listing for 13,500+ dump stations. Each site would contain the following information:

- Name of the dump station
- Nearest town or city
- Driving directions from a major highway or land mark
- Address of the location if known
- GPS location if known
- Operating hours and seasonality information
- Availability of potable and non-potable water
- Price or user fee
- Any special conditions or restrictions

Our comprehensive lists includes: Private and public parks, non-park, free, pay, donation and commercial locations for dumping your gray and black holding tanks.

New Edition

This is our eleven edition and we made several additions based upon your feedback, namely:

- Major Audit:
  - When receiving thousands of updates and submissions each year we have a challenge when the same location can be subbitted by different people for: different cities; different name; diffent address; other different details. We developed a tool to clean up the duplicates and now have a cleaner list of locations.
  - Testing of all the website addresses (URLs), as we do not control the location website there may be changes occuring during the year. A lot of website are changing their URL from a http:// to the more secure https://
- Updated information:
  - Over 8000 updates including GPS coordinates, phone numbers, urls, etc. (2020)
  - GPS coordinates for many locations
  - Phone numbers (New 2019)
  - Website address (URL) (New 2019)
  - Big Rig Friendly (New 2019)
  - Propane

Our Plea

Many dump stations have closed this past year due to abuse and mistreatment. We know many of these have been abused by commercial ventures dumping chemicals and other effluent into the system but we also have witnessed many RVers not cleaning up after their own mess.

Please report any misuse of dump stations to the proper authorities. Please also take the time to thank the folks that provide this service for "free" by honouring them with your business or just thanking them. Also, please do not dump your tanks into State or Provincial park toilets as the septic systems are not designed process 40-60+ gallons. This is especially true for RVers that have macerator systems.

This is a privilege so lets protect it.

Our Mission: Make RVing Fun, Safe & Environmentally Friendly

It's a little confusing as you get in, you want to follow the road to the Right toward the water treatment facility main offices. You will need to buzz in at the gate. Once inside you will see main office building, and a large Blue Ball thing. You want to take the road to the Left of that. Signs say toward handicap parking. Keep going straight into restricted area and about 1/2 way down the road you will see a small wooded box for donations and the dump sign. There are two long grate channels in the road. Just	Donation requested; $1.00 minimum • Open year round; Monday to Friday • rinse water (non-potable) available

Instructions on How to Empty Your RV Holding Tanks

Simple steps to dump your holding tanks successfully.

Caution:

Sewage contains many pathogens and bacteria that can be harmful if ingested or left on exposed skin for prolonged periods. Every care should be taken to minimize contact with the effluent at all times. Any exposed area should be thoroughly cleaned including hands, clothing, shoes, feet, tools, doors and latches and so on. Nothing is worse than not cleaning up and contaminating your steering too.

Remember, everyone reacts to such contamination differently. You may feel fine but your partner or your child may not. Sickness can ruin a good RVing experience.

Storing your tools:

Always try to store hoses and connectors in an enclosed, segregated place to avoid contact with any other items and avoid cross contamination. It is advisable to soak all these tools in a solution of bleach (1/4 cup per gallon of water) for 4 hours minimum at the beginning of each season to sanitize them. This is also good time to do a visual and leak test on the hose and replace it, if needed. Typical hose life is between 2-4 years as it can get brittle and scratched.

Pre-preparation: Have the right tools

Avoid dumping tanks that are not at least 2/3's full. If you have to dump, add water to the tanks till they become at least 2/3 full. This will help promote all the solids and particles to become suspended in the water and flow out of the tank. If you are going to travel before dumping, you can add some dish washing detergent (1/4 cup to a tank) and let it slosh around. Caution: Too much soap may cause excessive foaming!

Step 1:

Start by pulling up to the RV dump station and placing your black holding tank drain valve as close to the opening of the dump station as possible. This will ensure that if there is an accident, it will be contained in the dumping area. If your RV has more than one location for your drain valves, always do the black tank first. Unlock any compartments that you need to access for dumping the tanks.

Step 2:

Put on latex or other disposable gloves (to avoid any contamination) and get your sewer hose out. Before removing the cap to the holding tank drain opening, ensure both the gray and black water valves are both closed.

Step 3:

Always use an elbow and a hose ring to connect the sewer hose to dump station hole as this will hold the hose in place and avoid any splatter. If the ring or the elbow is not available, insert the end of the sewer hose into the dump station's hole about eight to twelve inches (if you only insert the hose a few inches the hose may come out when dumping the tanks and we don't want that!). Use the hole's cover, a brick, or something heavy enough to hold the sewer hose in place so it doesn't pop out of the hole (Do not use an object that could fall into the hole, you don't want a plugged dump station). Many web sites mention Step 4 then Step 3; we do Step 3 first to prevent any accidental spillage.

Step 4:

Check your sewer hose to ensure the hose is securely clamped to the adapter that attaches to the holding tank drain outlet. Remove the cap with the sewer hose underneath to catch any drips (open end up), when any drips have stopped, attach the sewer hose ensuring the adapter is completely attached. You can tell if it is when the tabs on the adapter are lined up with the stubs on the tank drain. A partially attached hose is more common than you think.

Step 5:

If you have a permanent-mount black tank rinse system, now is the time to connect it up to both the RV and the dump station water supply with a dedicated garden hose. Do not use your fresh water hose for the black tank rinse and do not turn on the water until the next step has started.

Step 6:

Once you are certain everything is secured, pull open the Black water tank valve first. You will hear the effluent rush through the hose, start to slow down, and finally become a trickling sound. Some solids may still stay lodged at the bottom of the tank as well as on the tank sidewall.

Step 7:

If you have connected a black tank rinse, turn on the water, let this run for two-five minutes to help remove solids left behind, then shut off the water and disconnect the garden hose. Now close the black water tank drain valve by pushing the handle completely closed.
If you do not have a black tank rinse system, you can fill the toilet bowl with water using the internal pump and water from your fresh tank. Ask your partner to flush the toilet to duplicate the action of black tank rinse system. You may need to do this twice. Please be sensitive if there is a line up at the dump station.

Step 8:

Now open the gray tank valve. As in step 6, you'll hear water flow, then slow, and stop. Close the gray tank valve. Repeat this step if you have more than one gray tank.

Step 9:

At this point, you're almost done. If you want to flush and rinse your tanks once more, you can do so by filling your tanks to 2/3 full (if you don't have a gray tank rinse system) and repeat the emptying process. If others are waiting to use the dump station, be courteous and skip this step. Do not put non-potable rinse water into your fresh water system for this as it will contaminate your system and it will require complete sanitization.

Step 10:

Recheck that both your black and gray water tank valves are closed and then disconnect the sewer hose from your tank outlet.

Step 11:

Lift the end of the sewer hose (the end you just disconnected) to completely drain the hose into the dump station. If a non-potable water hose is available, run water through the sewer hose to rinse it out. Remove the sewer hose from the dump station hole and rinse the outside of the hose. Rinse the area around the hole to ensure that any spillage has been cleaned up and cover the dump station hole. Replace the tank outlet cover.

Step 12:

Return you sewer hose etc. to storage.

Step 13:

Dispose of the latex gloves into the garbage bin (we don't mean down the dump station) or put them in your garbage bin in the rig. Clean all the surfaces you touched when wearing your gloves with bleach wipes. Wash or hand sanitize your hands just in case the gloves leaked.

Step 14:

If there is a line up, move your rig to allow the next user to use the dump station and then check holding tanks display panel. If they do not read empty, this is an early sign that your sensors may be getting gummed up. Visit our site for an inexpensive environmentally friendly tip for solving this problem.

Step 15:

Now add about three to three gallons of water (about three full bowl flushes) to your black tank and then add the appropriate amount of holding tank treatment. If you use a treatment for your gray tank, do that as well. This will ensure that everything stays moist and healthy in the tank till your next trip.

Step 16:

Record any notes or updated information about the RV dump station to be submitted to Sanidumps.com for other RVers.

Step 17:

The task of emptying your RV's holding tanks is now finished.

Step 18:

Submit the updated or validation information to Sanidumps.com when you have an internet connection.

Step 19:

Enjoy your RVing journeys.

Happy RVing!

Dump Station Etiquette

By KC Chavda

Today, while many dump stations are free to use, some are starting to charge anywhere from $2 to upwards of $60+, and I am not talking about honey wagon service. In America many state-run dump stations at rest areas have been closed. The main reason for this is pure and simple: ABUSE. To be fair, non-RVers are also to blame, some dump toxic waste like commercial cleaning waste, to avoid paying handling fees.

Consider access to dump stations as a privilege not a right.

I am going to touch on what we can do to try to ensure this privilege continues.

Etiquette Rules

1. Report anyone abusing the dump station. They are compromising our privilege.
2. Always thank the operator/owner for letting us use their dump station. If possible reward them by purchasing something: fuel, supplies, meal.
3. Make sure that the dump station can accommodate your rig. For example, some dump stations require you to back in or back out, and for a Motorhome with a toad, this is a nightmare scenario.
4. Be ready to dump at the dump station.
5. Have the right equipment: hoses, connectors, elbows, extensions, ...etc
6. Always wear protective gloves (disposable are preferable) when dumping. Chlorine wipes are great to wipe off storage bin doors and latches if you have to touch them.
7. Make sure to pull up close enough to a dump station for both your sewer and flusher (non potable) hose to reach. This will avoid the need to move the rig during the dumping process.
8. Always connect the sewer hose to the dump station outlet first. Then hold the tank end of the hose under the cap as you open it to capture any leakage in the tank drain. This will avoid accidental spillage on the ground.
9. Do not fill your fresh water tank while dumping as it is highly likely you may contaminate your water supply. Also, you may block someone else from dumping as it takes 5-10 min to fill a typical tank these days.
10. Always clean up the area before you leave. Like good fisherman, leave the site cleaner than you found it. Do a walk about to ensure you have taken all your equipment. Wipe off any areas that may be contaminated with a chlorine wipe.

Just a moment, I think I have a fish on the line... Oh it's just a sunfish. Ah well it's only eggs and toast for breakfast.

Happy RVing!

Product Testing

In the spirit of making RVing, fun, safe and environmentally friendly, we have been testing products and services that will aid RVers in this quest. It is also one of our more popular sections of our website, which tells us as this is important to you too. Our approach to product testing is looking at products from RVers point of view (not comparing other similar products or performing a scientific test). Testing includes reviewing packaging, installation instructions, customer support, actual installation procedure and tips, product usage, any unstated benefit, and longer term usage. This provides us with initial and long term viability of products.

Product Review - Electronic Tank Sensors, SeeLevel II System

Background

We dry camp over 90% of the time so knowing accurate information about the status of our tanks is critical to determine how many days we can continue to camp. I have 50 gallon tanks (189 litres) for Fresh, Gray and Black tanks which normally last over one week under normal use. (We carry an additional 15 gallons of drinking water in three 5 gallon containers which also doubles as our counterbalance to reduce pin weight). Every six gallons of water can add and an extra day of dry camping for us.

Over the last 10 years there have been several challenges with our tank readings. We have taken several steps to address these issues. First, our Gray tank read empty, full and 2/3rd (on a brand new RV) and I found out that one of the sensors was wired incorrectly. Second, we could never get fifty gallons in our Fresh tank (it ranged from forty gallons to forty-six gallons) depending on our fill procedures. Filling slowly allowed us to get more in the tank as it allows the tank to expand while filling. Third, unlike most RVers who complain about their Gray tank filling faster than Black, we were just the reverse (and I know we are not any more full of s$#t than other RVers!) so something was not right.

Volume	Gray	Black	Fresh
1/3	5 gal	3 gal	10 gal
2/3	24 gal	13 gal	23 gal
Full	39 gal	34 gal	35 gal
Capacity	49 gal	49 gal	45 gal

On one wet camping trip (with full hookups) we decided to measure our Black, Gray and Fresh water tanks and record when our three lights light up as we filled them a gallon at a time using a milk jug. (My wife being a retired Pharmacist made sure we measured it twice for accuracy) we were surprised at the results.

If you notice, the Black tank sensors are installed much lower on the tanks thus having all readings too low. This explained a lot of issues we had about readings. We had this chart in our RV as reference when we needed to know the status our tanks until we found a better solution.

My partner John tested an electronic tank measuring system called iSeries Tank System Monitor that gives accurate readings in % rather than just three points. He has been using this system for a while and it works well except it does need recalibration. He decided to run new wires to compare his old system with the new system, in my case, this would be a difficult proposition as pulling new wires where I want to install the readout panel is not possible.

Research

So off I went trying the find a better solution to my problem. I found a flow meter, WaterCounter, that I installed in line with my pump and that gave us a more accurate status of our Fresh water availability and solved most of our problems. What it did not address was when you fill the tank partially full to extend our stay. A more accurate reading of the status of Fresh tank would eliminate a lot of guessing and anxiety. My research uncovered several other potentials such as:

© 2006 - 2021 Sanidumps.com - All rights reserved.

- Horst RV Tank Sensors: These are better designed sensors that are a direct replacement for the common sensors installed. They mitigate debris that attach to the sensor and side of the tanks to give a better reading of the 3 sensors. Since I have a four season RV, I would have to drop the coroplast bottom with all the insulation to access these sensors and it still did not meet our needs. The Black tank sensors cost about $50 CAD and Gray tank sensor about $40 CAD.

- SensaTank RV100 Multi-Tank Monitoring System: A three tank system costs approximately $250 USD and includes:
    - Display panel, interface module, four-sensor wire harness, and twenty foot communication cable
    - Externally mounted system
    - Plug and go installation
    - No adverse effects from temperature, humidity, or vibration
    - One (1) Year Standard Warranty (Manufacturer's Defects)
    - It provides four level readings by using external field effect sensors that than connect to an interface module which communicates to the mounted monitor in your RV. Since these are externally mounted, it avoids direct contact with sewage and thus eliminates most common problems with existing sensors. Definitely, an improvement but it still did not meet our needs for more accurate and multipoint readings. This also required installing new wiring between the interface module and monitor panel. A no go.

- Vigilance Holding Tank Monitor: This requires you to install a sensor unit in your tanks with probes of different lengths that line up with each indicator level. They have a 6 level readout for each tank and the readings are spaced out nicely to show more data at critical tank levels. A single tank monitor cost about $200 USD and you have to provide detailed information about your tank type, dimension and shape and it requires new wiring. Again an improvement in the number of levels, but does not address wiring concerns, requires drilling a hole in the tank, allows for potential sensor foul up and has a much higher cost for 3 tank system.

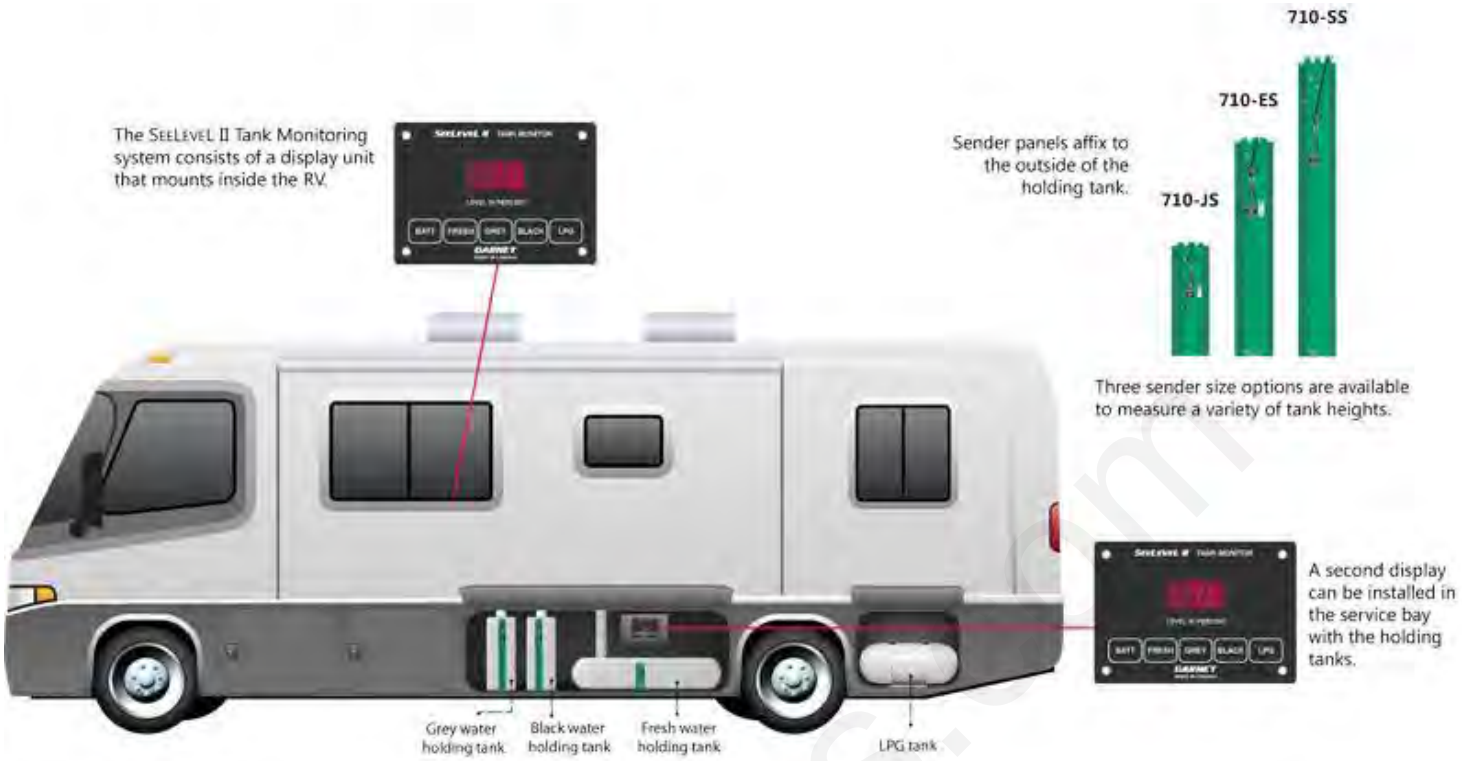
- SeeLeveL II RV Tank Monitor Series from Garnet Instruments: This is a Canadian company out of Edmonton who designs, develops and manufacturers commercial sensors for a variety of industries, including the RV industry, for over 20 years. Their systems are standard installed products on many high-end RVs.



- Their new Bluetooth system demonstrated at the EarlyBird RV show in Abbottsford caught my attention. The key features that met my needs were:
  - Multi-level readings
  - Used existing wiring to make the installation easier
  - No calibrations required, install and use it
  - Measures tanks of any shape, size or type
  - Variety of monitor panels and sensors to address any retrofit. They even have filler panels to accommodate different monitor openings, requirements for pump, heater switches and more
  - There are extensive, intuitive diagnostics to help troubleshooting while installing and using
  - System is designed to operate up to 18V DC (so equalizing phase of chargers will not adversely affect sensitive electronics)
  - Other features such as Alarms and Bluetooth seemed interesting but I could not see how I would use them. This changed quickly after the installation.
  - Depending on your requirements, a three tank system with a pump switch would run you less than $300 CAD which is very comparable to other options.

Package

In my case the product was shipped in electrostatic bags with the following:

- 1 Bluetooth monitor (part # 709-btp3) which is a 3 tank system with pump switch and battery readout)
- 1 Filler plate (709 filler plate)
- 3 ES Senders (710-ES 12 inch senders)
  - Fresh water tank (7 inch deep)
  - Black water tank (10 inch deep)
  - Gray water tank (10 inch deep)
- Wiring harness for the monitor

Since my RV is 4 seasons, the biggest workload was actually dropping and re-installing the bottom coroplast. I also decided to add a Gray tank Flush to my RV and extra insulation at the same time which added another 2.5 hours to my 4.5 hour install time. In addition my Fresh water tank is installed right over my axles which also extended my install time. As a senior with a bad back lying on your back for this long in rainy spring weather meant you had to start and stop the project a lot and also I had to close up each night to avoid un-invited guests (mice/rats) finding a new residence in the RV.

Tools and items required:

- Power driver
- 2 conductor 16 gauge wire (optional as I wanted to leave original wires intact just in case) to extend the sensor wires with bullet connectors
- Butt connectors
- Wire cutter, stripper and crimper
- Masking tape and pen for labeling wires
- Crawler (my RV is quite high and my arms are short so this brings me closer to the work area)
- Electric tape
- Small 12 inch level
- Scissors

Installation

There is one pre-installation step of finding the size (or height of your tank) to ensure the right sensors are ordered. In my case this required me to drop my coroplast bottom (two of them) to measure. My Black and Gray tanks, located in front for the RV are 10.5 inches in height while my Fresh tank, located right on top of the axles is 7 inch in height. Therefore I ordered the 710-ES (12 inch) sensors.

© 2006 - 2021 Sanidumps.com - All rights reserved.

Each tank had 1 pair of wires going from the original tank sensors all the way to the monitor panel. If you have a pump switch on your monitor, you will also need to check the maximum amperage required by your pump. This is usually marked right on your water pump. In my case my pump was rated at maximum 7 amps. If your pump required more than 7.5 amps, you will also need an inline relay to accommodate the built in switch.

Once I received my SeeLevel II system, I opened the package and noticed that the existing wires on the sensors were not long enough for my installation, so I extended the wires. The Fresh tank required an extension of 10 feet while the Black and Gray tank sensors had a 3 feet extension.

At this time, I cut the appropriate tabs to mark each sensor for Black, Gray and Fresh tank as per instructions as well as the correct length as per instructions (leaving about a 1/4" on top and bottom to allow for the thickness of the tank). My main reason for doing this was to ensure that I keep the existing wires to my original sensors as close to original as I can. This system only requires one pair of wires to connect all the tanks to the monitor. I decided to use my original pair of Gray tank sensor wires as my common pair for the new installation.

© 2006 - 2021 Sanidumps.com - All rights reserved.

Once I identified the locations for each sensor, I thoroughly cleaned the surface using alcohol, making sure there was no metal within 2 inches of the sensor (old sensor, tank connection, frame or metal insulation if you have bubble style insulation with a metal foil on one side. Then I made sure my RV was level and then using the level I marked a vertical line on the tank. I placed electrical tape on either side of the sensor and temporarily stuck the sensor on each tank. I connected all the sensors in parallel.

Next, I removed my old monitor panel, marked all the wires (at the panel as well as on the RV, in case I have to replace it for some reason down the road). I measured the current opening in my panel and measured the opening as well as the depth to ensure the new panel would fit. I had to square up the hole using a coarse wood file. Next, I looked at my pump switch and how it turned on (is up on or is down on). SeeLevel II system has the ability to address both conditions (small feature that comes in handy).

My RV does not have a propane sensor (like RVs with fixed tanks) so I taped up these wires. This unit also has the capability to install a tank alarm to warn against any critical conditions that you program into the unit. Since I am not a fan of buzzers going on in the RV (and worse staying on till the alarm condition is resolved), I decided that I would install a small LED light at a later date to warn us quietly.

Following the wiring instructions provided, I connected the panel to the wiring harness provided. Then I slipped the filler panel on before I connected the wiring harness to the monitor and pushed all the wires in. Using the level to level the monitor/filler panel I screwed them into the RV. Now that I had the panel powered up, I checked the reading on each of my tanks. One of the Fresh tank wires had come off while I was working on the panel and the monitor quickly identified it as an open circuit (another nice feature) which I resolved.

Since my Gray and Black tanks had some fluids in from de-winterizing the RV, it seemed like a reasonable reading. I emptied all tanks and the reading went down to zero like they should. I then filled the tanks and the reading showed 100% which completed my test to ensure the sensors were at the right place. I went back to the sensors, removed the electrical tape and the 3M paper on the sensors and stuck the sensors vertically along the line. Be careful as you only get one chance to stick it right.

I then went on my android phone and installed the Garnet app from the Google Play Store and setup Bluetooth to connect to the monitor and the display showed me my tank readings as well as my battery voltage (really cool stuff).

© 2006 - 2021 Sanidumps.com - All rights reserved.

Now all that remained was to re-install my coroplast bottoms and all the insulation. Since I also installed a Gray tank flush too, I had to do some Pex pipe routing and valve installation. This was a very straight forward retro-fit. The opening and closing of the closed bottom takes more time than installing and testing the SeeLevel II system. If your tanks are exposed (two or three seasons RV) the installation time would be a lot less. The one install that could prove to be difficult is if you have the tanks with hard foam insulation as it would take time to remove the foam, clean up the location before installing the system. Some Class A and Class C RVs may have their tanks exposed in the storage bins so installation would be fairly easy.

The instructions provided are very good and thorough. The built-in fault conditions are clearly messaged and cover most error conditions during install and deployment. The factory support is also excellent as you speak with knowledgeable staff.

Results/Personal Experience

I have been putting the system through its paces while de-winterizing and sanitizing my water systems prepping for our two week RV trip. I observed the following:

1. My tanks are 50 gallons (which means each 2% represents 1 gallon, easy to remember). On my Fresh tank the readings step up by 6% each time (or three gallons). That means I now have 17 levels of readings (instead of four levels before). My flow meter corroborated the accuracy of the sensor. One of the biggest benefits for us, now, is the ability to track the amount of Fresh water when we partially fill the tank before its empty (something we do often while dry camping to extend out stay). My flow meter system cannot manage this situation. We use to reset the flow meter and then guess how much water we had by comparing it with the original inaccurate system. No more guessing or playing Russian roulette or having to go and get some water in the night.
2. Finally, our Gray tank will fill faster than a Black tank (like everyone else)! More importantly, now we can have more water in the Black tank to ensure solids stay suspended and are easier to remove when dumping.
3. If you press the tank readout button and hold it momentarily, it will stay on till you press another button. I use this to monitor my Fresh water tank fill to ensure I have filled the tank to maximum.
4. The alarm system will be of good use (once I install an LED) to let us know, when we have hit a critical condition in any of our tanks.
5. The Bluetooth readings are very useful when dumping the tanks as I can see the tank status outside by the discharge while dumping. No more shouting back forth with my wife to see if the tanks are reading totally empty. Another good use of my new smart phone!
6. We also use our RV as a guest cabin when parked at home for visitors (they are not RVers) and therefore not aware of managing tanks. The Bluetooth system allows me to read the levels while I am inside my home and handle any situations without having to enter the RV and disturb the guests.

Net, net, I am very happy with the system. It provides me with a level of information we need to take our lifestyle on the road and reduces any anxiety related to our tanks and water management when dry camping. Well worth the effort required to install the system, no more guessing!

Product Review - RV Emergency Flasher

John's Report

Background:

Do you want to feel safe when you have an RV emergency on the road?

Do you want to check all your lights without going back and forth to the tow vehicle?

Do you need to disconnect your tow vehicle but you want the trailer to be visible to traffic?

You can choose to just turn the trailer lights on or have the lights flash as a sign of emergency.

The roadside isn't the only place where having flashing lights may also be useful. Suppose you're traveling, RVing or boondocking somewhere and are in need of emergency assistance. Maybe you can call for help on your cell phone but how in the world can you give specific directions to your location (a GPS device can help here also). Those flashing running lights out in the darkness could be the beacon emergency response people need to find you.

How To:

The key is to connect the flasher to your trailer's umbilical plug as shown in the illustration. The two white arrows shown in the diagram below are pointing to the top two pins of the plug. The pin on the left is #4 and is the battery charging line (Battery +ve), the right pin, #3, supplies power to the license, tail and running lights.

Enhanced RV Emergency Flasher

I didn't want to try to remember how to make the above RV emergency flasher during an emergency in the dark so I pre-made the RV emergency flasher. It's very simple and easy to use as all you have to do is plug in the unit into your trailer's umbilical plug.

I added a fuse between the #4 (battery source) and the flasher for safety.

You could also wired it so the running lights are on solid and only the brake lights flash.

Product Review - Solar Panels and Inverters

John's Report

Background:

I had a question, did I need to buy the whole system at once?

This is my journey with solar panels and inverters for RVs since 2004. Chris (my wife) and I like to go RVing in national, provincial, and state campsites and these locations do not have electrical hookups at many locations. Many times we had to leave our campsites to get the batteries charged up and I thought there had to be a better way to extend our trip. We had a choice of going the generator method or the solar method, we decided on the solar method.

My first RV with solar had an 80 watt panel, since then I have had the following combinations of solar panels:

- 80 watts (80 panel)
- 190 watts (combination of 80 + 110 panels)
- 220 watts (110 + 110 panels)
- 340 watts (110 + 110 + 120 panels)
- 465 watts (110 + 110 + 120 + 125 panels)
- 885 watts (120 + 125 + 160 + 160 + 160 + 160 panels) the future is now here, 2013 October
- 1045 watts (120 + 125 + 160 + 160 + 160 + 160 + 160 panels) 2019 June update

As you can see, I have mixed different sizes of solar panels together and there could be more panels in the future, as my current RV could hold another two or more panels on the roof.

Solar Planning Stage:

When I had my first solar panel installed I advised the RV Dealer to up size the wiring (to use a larger wire size) from the solar panel to the solar regulator as I had plans to add future panels to the roof. This decreases the power lost from the panel to the batteries due to wire size.

What I didn't do was make sure the location on the roof where the solar panel was being installed would easily allow for another panel beside it. Oops, when I installed the second solar panel I needed longer cables to make the connection to the first panel. If the first panel was moved about six inches I could of fit the second panel beside the first one. Why is this important? Careful planning can save installation steps later and longer wires introduce line losses that affect efficiency of the system.

RV Batteries

Since the style of RVing Chris and I like to do is not always the full hookup style. We enjoy more of the get to know nature style where we would not have power, water, and sewer hookups. We decided to not go with the single twelve volt battery that a lot of RVs come with because of its limited amount of stored power. The choice we made was to go with four, six volt deep cycle batteries (also known as golf cart style) with the greater amount of stored power. This enabled us to go for long weekends not needing to charge the batteries.

Solar Panel Installation

I'm not going to cover the solar installation process here as KC has covered his solar installation and there's a good video showing the installation. I will add some notes throughout this report.

Notes from my installations:

- On my first RV with a solar panel the RV technician drilled through the roof for the wires going to the solar regulator
- On my second RV with solar panels I ran the wires from the roof through the holding tank vent cap, you can also use the fridge vent on the RV, I would pick either of these methods before drilling in the roof
- I have always used the black expansion plugs that come with the solar panels for mounting the solar panels

This image shows where I would run the wires through the sewer vent cap, the wires run down beside the vent pipe, not inside the pipe. Also the location of the hole for the wires in the vent cap is not at the base of the cap.

What We Did With 80 Watts of Solar Power (2004 May)

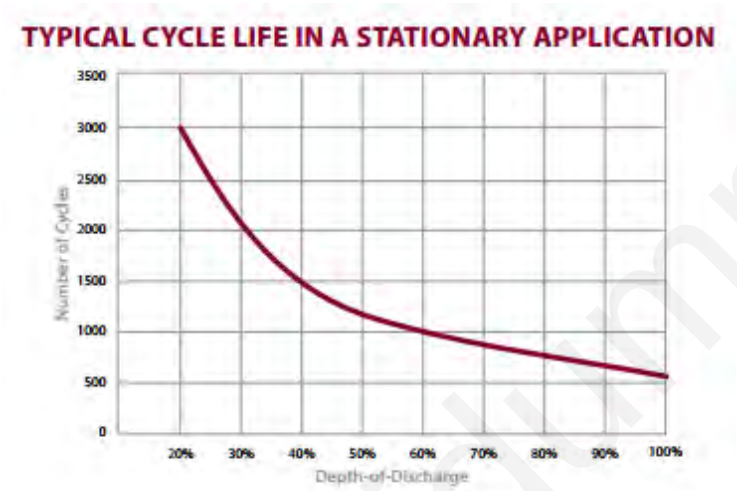
(80 panel)

Our first solar panel was 80 watts and is considered a small panel by today's standards but you will be surprised how much it helped. We didn't have a lot of electronics running, no TV, no microwave, etc. just a basic RV with four, six volt deep cycle batteries.

When RVing with no hookups to power, water, sewer, etc. we found that there were four things that could limit our stay:

- running out of water (solved with taking water containers)
- holding tanks being full (our water supply is a lot less than our holding tank capacity)
- batteries running low (this is the item that would limit our stay while RVing and forced us to leave the campsite)
- running out of propane (with 60 pounds of propane this has not happened yet)

On my very first RV, the only item that used battery power was the two lights. Today, there's is a lot more battery demand for the furnace, fridge, water pump, many more lights, slides, jacks, carbon monoxide gas alarm, propane detectors, etc. For new RVs there is a need for a lot more battery power and I have not discussed the need for power for TVs, DVDs, etc.!



Another thing I learned was that the more you keep your battery charged up, the longer it will last. RV batteries generally should not be drawn below 50% of their capacity or it will shorten the life of the battery.

This chart shows that a battery being used to 50% compared to the battery being used 20%, has less life cycles, a shorter life.

With the 80 watts solar panel we found that we could stay out longer before our batteries were drained down to 50%. :-) We still have to conserve our battery power but not like we had to without solar.

There is an article (RV Times) about Chris quilting at a campground with no power hookup, using a small inverter and our batteries with this 80 watt solar panel. No noisy generators required.

Is More Solar Better? (190 Watts)

(80 + 110 panels)

We were very pleased with the 80 watt solar panel, can more be better? The decision to use more power to run some 120V AC power (shore power) devices such as the microwave, required us to install an inverter (converts battery power DC to shore power AC), the Magnum MS2812 2800 watt true sine wave inverter was our choice. This required us to add another solar panel since we were using more power, another 110 watt panel was added to join the 80 watt panel.

Our first small inverter was a modified square wave inverter, it could charge my laptop but the laptop brick

© 2006 - 2021 Sanidumps.com - All rights reserved.

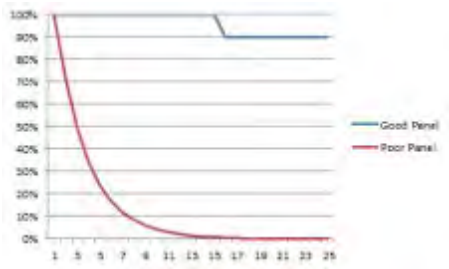
(charging transformer) would run very hot and the laptop would take longer to charge up. KC has a great review of the Magnum inverter so I'm not going to repeat many of the same points here. I will make one very important note here, Chris loves the one button to turn the inverter off or on, it is very simple to use!

The 190 watt solar package enables us to now watch an old small black and white TV (garage sale special for $5) and Chris enjoyed being able to quilt for longer periods of time. We were also able to use the microwave to quickly defrost items for lunch while traveling on the road or for dinner.

With only the 80 watt panel I would always look for the campsite with the best view towards the sun, with 190 watts this was less critical.

220 Watts of Solar Power

(110 + 110 panels)



We sold our old RV and purchased another RV and made the following changes:

- moved the Magnum inverter over from the old RV
- sold the batteries (five years old), replace with the same number and type of batteries
- sold the 80 watt solar panel, I wanted more power from the same roof space
- purchased a new 110 watt panel

These solar panels have a 25 year warranty not like some cheep units that you can find that only last a few years. Also make sure you are dealing with a company that will be around, I've seen solar companies come and go and your long term warranty isn't of any value if the company is not there to support you!

Carmanah Technologies founded in 1996 offers a 25 year warranty for their solar panels that at 15 years the panel output is still 100% of the rated capacity, at 25 years the panel output is still 90% of the rated capacity. While some panels have a warranty that they can be 30% less effective after one year! The chart shows Go Power!™ warranty in blue and a poor warranty in red for rated output from the panel.

340 Watts of Solar Power

(110 + 110 + 120 panels)

© 2006 - 2021 Sanidumps.com - All rights reserved.

As you add more panels locations on the roof, roof space can become an issue. I use the cardboard cut outs and my existing panels to lay out my panels before I drill a single hole or attach a single clamp. I learned my lesson with the first solar panel installation. The above images are of my RV with three solar panels and cardboard layouts planning for future solar panels. The image on the left and the right are possible options, the image in the middle is not a future option as it would restrict walking on the roof to clean the solar panels.

There is minimum maintenance required for maximum performance. Just wipe the solar panel with a damp cloth when they get dirty, this increases the amount of sunlight electricity entering the solar cell to produce more power.

We enjoy RVing in the early spring and late fall. During this time of the season the weather is not as warm and we find we are running the furnace often in the mornings to warm up the RV from the cool nights. Many nights the temperature would go below freezing but we were toasty warm in the RV. With 340 watts of solar panel we don't have to be concerned with running the batteries down, as we did before as our solar panels would have our batteries fully charged in the early afternoon. We also observed our batteries were drawn down less than 25% which significantly improves battery life.

465 Watts of Solar Power (2011 October)

(110 + 110 + 120 + 125 panels)

Chris teases me that I must want to sell power to our neighbours. Many days the batteries are fully charged by ten to eleven in the morning, we can watch a movie many nights in a row if we want to but most of the time we are reviewing our photography shots on the TV in the evening (yes, the black and white TV has been replaced and it is better viewing the pictures on a large screen LCD TV then the tiny camera screens).

Remember the chart above about the cycles and battery life? I sold my original batteries after five years and they were in great shape. Keeping your batteries fully charged and not having many deep cycles will extend the life of your battery.

Solar Regulators

I have used three different solar regulators, or charge controllers. The regulator/controller maintains the life of the battery by protecting it from being overcharged. The first unit I had (rated at 20 amps) was a simple off/on type of regulator, it would sense if the solar power should be passed on to the battery or not, this is not the most efficient type and I would not recommend this type of solar regulator.

The second and third regulators were pulse width modulation (PWM) technology with a unique four stage charging system to charge and protect your battery bank. Pulse Width Modulation (PWM) is the most effective means to achieve constant voltage battery charging by switching the solar system controller's power devices. When in PWM regulation, the current from the solar array tapers according to the battery's condition and recharging needs.

© 2006 - 2021 Sanidumps.com - All rights reserved.

My second regulator was rated at 25 amps and with 465 watts of solar power I exceeded the design of the regulator. The third regulator is rated at 30 amps.

Inverters

I have used several small square wave or modified wave inverters over the years. I have found that these type of inverters are not as efficient as a true sine wave inverter. A true sine wave inverter produces a wave the same as the power coming from your electrical outlet at home. I also found that chargers do not run very well when using modified wave inverters. The true sine wave inverter that I have used on two of my RVs is the Magnum MS2812, you can see KCs review of the Magnum MS2812 inverter.

Will I add more solar panels?

You never know what lies ahead so it is hard to answer the question. I am sure as we carry and install more electronics, the need for power will increase. I have met with many RVers who ask questions about solar. Everyone's RV lifestyle and power needs are unique and therefore require a unique answer.

With solar, some key questions to consider are:

RVing Lifestyle

- Full hookups
- Dry camping or boondocking
- Full time or weekender or somewhere in between

Appliances and Length of Use

- How often does the furnace run? This is a heavy power user!
- Do you need to run the air conditioner?

Locations Where You RV

- What latitude do you do most of your RVing? The further North, the more you will need.

Time of the Year and Length of Each Trip

- How often do you go RVing?
- What time of the year do you RV? Spring, Summer, Fall, Winter
- Weather, is it clear and sunny most of the time or is it cloudy?
- Is your campsite covered with trees or is it open to the sun?

Sanidumps.com

 © 2006 - 2021 Sanidumps.com - All rights reserved.

- Is there snow on the roof while you are RVing?
- How do you store your RV during the winter months?

Costs

- Do you need to run medical devices through the night?
- How well do you conserve power or do you want power at any cost?
- Do you like running a noisy generator?

Basically, what are your power needs? This Calculator can help you calculate your solar needs.

I have found the staff at Carmanah Technologies are very helpful.

If there is one advice I would like to share is that you do not need to buy the whole system at once, I started with one 80 watt solar panel and grown to four panels with 465 watts of solar power, you can add on as your needs change or budget permits. My inverters started with cheap square wave inverters and grown to a quality true sine wave inverter. With the pricing of solar these days, you can even save some money as they seem to be getting cheaper every year.

Would I Do Anything Different?

Yes!

I would have gotten into using solar sooner. The joys of life are important, if you have seen me presenting seminars you will know that one of the last slides in the presentation is of some of the scenic pictures we have taken while RVing.

Solar has helped Chris and I enjoy the life of RVing.

885 Watts of Solar Power (2013 June)

(120 + 125 + 160 + 160 + 160 + 160 panels)

The future is here, I now have 885 watts of solar power on the RV roof and I have changed the solar regulator to an MPPT type. Watch for my review in the future.

Here's a picture of the roof of my RV with 885 watts of solar panels.

1045 Watts of Solar Power (2019 June)

(120 + 125 + 160 + 160 + 160 + 160 + 160 panels)

I had an extra 160-watt solar panel in the basement of our house, and I had space on the RV so lets install it. Actually I had plans to install this panel for a few years, I didn't get around to it as the installation would require running some more wires from the roof of the RV to the basement, this is not an easy task doing it by yourself.

My son-in-law was visiting for a few days and we had a window of opportunity so I took advantage of his help.

Before installing this last panel, I had all the solar panel connected in series (not parallel), adding this panel would require that I put the solar panels in two loops of series (making a series/parallel connection), this would prevent maxing out the total voltage on the solar regulator (MPPT type).

Wasn't 885 watts enough? Yes, but we are doing more and more RVing in the colder period of the year and the sun, if it is shinning is lower on the horizon. Not the best situation for solar, but I do not like hearing the generator running, I rather listen to nature.

I have experience with using solar from only 80 watts of power to now 1045 watts. I also receive many questions while at seminars and on the road about solar, with this full range of solar use I believe I can answer most RVers questions.

There have been times when RVing with friends (without solar) and they had drained their batteries very low, to help them out, I had them plug their RV into our RV like you would do when at home or when connected to power at a campsite. My RV, running solar would charge their batteries and we could extend their stay.

Product Review - Upgrading Charger and Inverter Setup in my RV

KC's Report

Background:

My 2007 5th Wheel came with a 400 watt modified wave inverter (not shown) and a Progressive Dynamics 9145A 45 amp multi-stage charger with wizard. This inverter is an upgrade over most fixed rate chargers that deliver a constant 13.6 volt charge. The inverter was directly wired to my audio/visual 120AC plug in the entertainment center.

In 2008, I had to upgrade the 400 watt modified wave inverter to a Xantrex RS400 true sine inverter to eliminate a hum on the audio and TV from the modified sine inverter. This worked extremely well.

Since we dry camp or boondock 80-90% of the time, we are required to run other AC devices such as the microwave, laptops and exhaust fan/light over the stove. To manage this I had installed a Xantrex XM1800Pro modified sine wave inverter to run all the other AC devices except for water heater and air conditioner.

© 2006 - 2021 Sanidumps.com - All rights reserved.

This was a cost versus benefit driven decision. There were several benefits such as:

- A built-in remote capability so we did not have to go outside and turn it on and off.
- It had a built-in transfer switch so that the inverter would not be used if the RV was connected to shore power.
- It provided basic information on my battery status on the remote.

The install was fairly easy and the manuals were very good. Locating all the units was a little challenge due to space and proximity to the batteries.

In conjunction, I also acquired an ultra-quite Honda 2000i 2000 watt generator/inverter to charge my batteries. This setup had following drawbacks:

- Sensitive electronics could not be plugged into the Xantrex XM1800Pro.
- Microwave power was compromised (ran at less than 50% power) and it made a funny sound. Later I discovered that modified sine wave power could shorten the life of the microwave.
- The stove exhaust fan ran at a significantly slower speed rendering it ineffective.
- Charging batteries took much longer. Even though the generator put out over 1620 watts or 13.3 amps AC, my 45 amp DC charger could only charge at 540 watts rate. This meant I had to run the generator much longer to get a full charge. We only ran the generator after 10 am but it felt uncomfortable creating noise in the campground.
- When we plugged into shore power, the charger insisted on taking almost 4.5 amps at 120 volts AC to charge the batteries which meant, we only had 10.5 amps when connected to a 15 amp circuit (mostly at home). Therefore, we could run neither the air conditioner nor the vacuum, a major inconvenience for my wife. She had to wait until the charger completed the charge cycle or I temporarily shut down the charger manually which meant I had to remember to restart it after she completed the vacuuming.

Since we RV anywhere from 11 to 18 weeks a year, taking multiple trips, this became an issue we needed to resolve.

Research

After researching several inverters, chargers and combo units with a variety of specs, we decided that an ideal solution should meet the following requirements:

1. A combined charger, inverter and transfer switch combo would reduce wiring requirements and make it easier to install.
2. The unit should have an operating range of -15C to 40C which is a typical RVing temperature range.
3. The unit should be UL 458 certified for safety.
4. A pure sine inverter should be rated at a minimum of 2,000 watts continuous with surge capacity of 3,000 watts.
5. A multi-stage charger with a minimum of 80 amps (which is the maximum rating for my 4x6 volt flooded battery bank). It should also have an equalizer mode to equalize the battery bank to extend battery life).
6. A charger efficiency of >85%.
7. A power factor of >95%.
8. A low power consumption in standby mode (No load).
9. A transfer switch rated at 20 amps or higher. This would determine the wiring and if a sub panel would be required.
10. A remote that would allow full access to all the functions inside the RV.
11. A solid vendor reputation with service centers across North America.
12. A longer than 1 year warranty was preferable.

In 2010, we met with Sean from the Go Power!TM team at a trade show. I mentioned our dilemma and he suggested we look into a Magnum charger/inverter/transfer switch controller with an intelligent remote as a solution. We selected the Magnum MS2812, ME-RC50 remote and BMK battery management system with a 125 amp multi-stage charger, 2800 watt true sine inverter and a built-in transfer switch. The price premium over the 2000 watt MS2012 was very little compared to additional capacity for charging and the inverter wattage. The main reason, we went with this unit, even though it was a little overkill were following:

© 2006 - 2021 Sanidumps.com - All rights reserved.

- It is much easier to wire and install.
- We can now run everything in our RV on the inverter if need be.
- Excellent 3 year warranty and product reviews.
- Excellent operating temperatures from -20C to 60C (-4F to 140F).
- The power factor >98% and a charger efficiency of 85%.
- A 30 second surge capacity of 3800 watts for those devices that require surge power at start up.
- A built-in 30 amp transfer switch which allowed us to wire shore power directly into the inverter and then on to the RV breaker panel.
- Caramanah support throughout North America.

The manual and additional advice from the Go Power!TM team made the install a breeze once I figured out how to bend the #3/0 (over 1" thick) DC cables. I wired my shore power directly into the Magnum and then connected to my 30 amp fuse panel which meant I did not have to install an AC sub panel. All in all the wiring became much simpler. If you are a DIY person, make sure you include a DC slow blow fuse (200 amp) and a cut-off switch to cut all loads as well as appropriately sized DC wiring. Also I would recommend you get it checked out by a professional as these are big currents and could create fires and personal injuries. The Magnum manual is by far the best manual I have ever come across in the RV world. It covers just about all eventualities and configurations of batteries and RV wiring.

The remote panel is full of useful information about the health of your power system, the battery bank and power consumption with charging rates from solar as well as shore power. The setup accounts for most battery types and AC inputs from 15-50 amps. There are many parameters that you can set for your particular need or just use the default set up that works for most RVers. My wife likes the simplicity of the remote (easy to turn it on or off and lets you know the status of the battery bank) since it allows her to use the system with little confusion.

© 2006 - 2021 Sanidumps.com - All rights reserved.

Results:

The install was a breeze and it took about 2 hours of planning to layout the physical space and to calculate the wiring lengths and routing and an additional four hours doing the actual wiring. The confined space (sitting in the basement to wire and bend the #3/0 cables) was the biggest challenge. The manual outlines the setup and testing of the unit in nice easy steps. You can customize the setup as much or as little as you want. I would highly recommend you spend the extra dollars for the ME-RC50 remote as it makes setup and usage much more user friendly. The combination of 225 watt solar, 4 x 6 volt battery bank, Magnum MS2812 and ME-RC50 remote is a perfect setup for us and our lifestyle when we go RVing.

Remember, you can transfer all this equipment to your next RV if you do decide to upgrade. All you have to do is keep the factory supplied charger and leave the solar panel clamps mounted on the roof (so that you don't break the seal on the rubber roof; the clamps are easy to replace). Given the robustness of these products and the long warranties, this is one investment that will enhance your RVing experience for a long time.

Now I have to find good homes for my Xantrex Inverters.

Product Review - iSeries Tank Monitor

John's Report

How well do your RV holding tank gauges work? Do you get or have false readings? This is one of the biggest complaints RVers have with their water systems.

The majority of our RVing is dry camping or boondocking and as such we have to rely on our tank sensors to determine how long can we stay before dumping our tanks or having to get more fresh water. The sensor technology deployed in most RVs today has several inherent problems that make it unreliable and unusable. The most common issues encountered are:

- 4 level positions are not enough to provide adequate information on the status of tank levels.
- Sensor placements are arbitrary. On one 50 gallon tank my 1/3 full sensor goes on when it contains 5 gallons (because the sensor is placed too low on the tank), while on another tank the 2/3 full and full sensors reading are almost the same.
- Since these sensors are installed by drilling into the tanks, there is always a possibility of leaks with age.
- Sensors get gummed up with solids in the tank. No matter how diligently one keeps the tanks clean, intermittent sensor malfunction is a way of life for RVers.

Sanidumps.com gives seminars at RV shows, dealer events and rallies where we discuss managing your water systems. Attendees tell us that malfunctioning tank sensors are one of the major inconveniences and frustrations for most RVers.

At one RV show, I was approached by Tech-Edge Manufacturing LLC. Their "iSeries Tank Systems Monitor" is an external sensor with a monitor system that reads through the tank walls. This means that there is no drilling and you don't have to worry about your sensors getting corroded or waste solids causing issues with false readings.

My favorite feature is that I get a more accurate reading in percentage full as well as a bar chart feedback. with this system now I have 100 "levels" instead of 4.

The iSeries Tank System Monitor is the only tank monitor tested and approved by the United States Coast Guard per Tech-Edge Manufacturing and the system is also NMMA certified using ABYC standards.

The Base system for 3 tanks, LP monitoring, and battery voltage retails for $229 US and there is an additional $5 for a pump on/off switch. If you have more tanks you can get an add-on tank kit for an additional $35 US. The system I installed cost $269 US as I have 2 grey tanks. It comes with a one year warranty, excellent documentation and free installation support.

© 2006 - 2021 Sanidumps.com - All rights reserved.

Tech-Edge has complete documentation and videos on their web site for Quicktime, Windows Media Player, and YouTube. I would recommend viewing their installation video before you start this project and when you are ready to calibrate the sensors they have a video for calibrating the sensor. This is an excellent way to review the product before you purchase and review it again before you start the installation.

The unit I installed has the ability to monitor four regular tanks, four LP sending units, battery voltage meter, and a water pump switch. This kit package comes with three regular sensors and for my fourth tank there's a single tank sensor kit available. I installed the sensors on my Fresh Water tank, Black holding tank, Grey #1 holding tank, and the Grey #2 holding tank. My current propane tanks do do not have the LPG or 90 ohm unit.

The kit also contains a display panel, wiring harness, conductive foil, wire connectors, external sensors, instructions and warranty.

© 2006 - 2021 Sanidumps.com - All rights reserved.

Tools Required

Some of the tools are optional depending on your installation needs.

© 2006 - 2021 Sanidumps.com - All rights reserved.

- Drill (for mounting the display panel)
- 1/8" drill bit
- Tape measure
- Level
- Electrical tape
- Box cutter / sissors
- Voltage tester
- Hand / jig saw (for making hole for display panel)
- Wire - between 22 and 18 AWG (I used 18 AWG)
- Additional butt connectors
- Wire cutters
- Isopropyl alcohol

Additional Items Required

I purchased a roll of blue and red wire and I used a roll of black wire from a previous project. The kit does not come with wire for making the connections from the wire harness to the sensors since there are so many different installation configurations; one installation may only need 10 feet or less of wire while another may need 50 feet or more. You may only be installing three sensors (Fresh, Black, Grey) or you may be installing seven or more sensors (Fresh, Black, Grey #1, Grey #2, Propane #1, Propane #2, Fuel, etc.).

Installation

Most RVs have 3 tanks, Fresh water, Black water and Grey water, so the base kit is all you need. I recommend you get the Pump on/off switch option as this would allow you to replace your existing tank monitoring system.

Since RVs come in many different configurations, your installation may differ from mine. In general most 3 season RVs can be easily identified as the dumping valves will be fully exposed and will have the tanks also exposed under the RV, while 4 season RVs have their tanks enclosed and insulated and the tank valves are installed in a heated area of the RV and are not visible from outside.

Since the installation instructions and installation tech support provided by Tech-Edge is so complete and thorough, my installation will focus on useful tips to keep track of all the wires.

Since my RV is 4 season, I have the additional step of having to drop the tank enclosure from the undercarriage to expose the tanks. I would suggest you take pictures of the undercarriage before you remove it and place an arrow showing which end faces the front of the RV as this will make it easier to re-install the cover. This is a good time to check if the insulation is clean and dry and to add insulation if you have room; I also added water pipe insulation to my water lines.

Now is a good time to decide where you want the monitor to be installed. In most cases, this monitor will replace the existing monitor. If this is the case, check to see if you can pull wires for the new monitor at this location. Otherwise you will need to find another convenient location that provides:

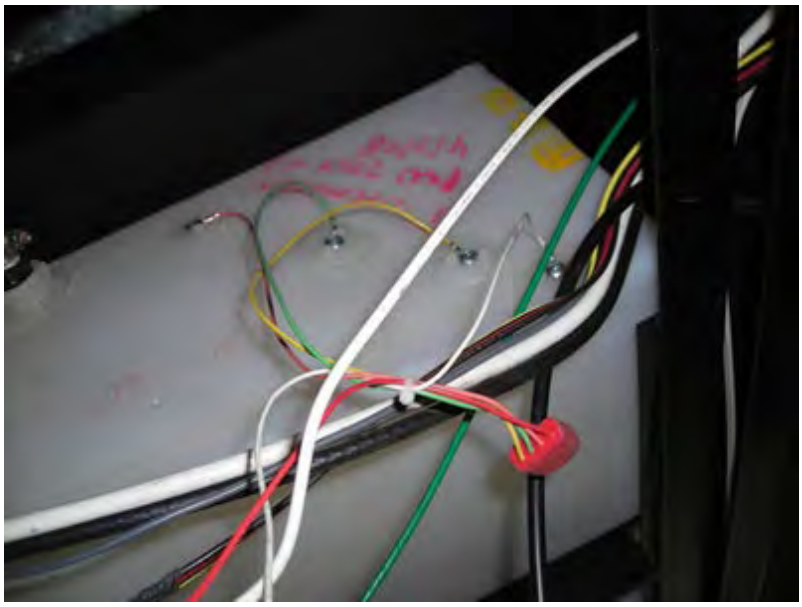
- Eye level view of the monitor.
- Access to pull wires for the new monitor.
- Ensure that new sensor wires are not too close to other AC wiring within the RV.
- And if you are planning to keep the monitor for your next RV, you can "plug" the new mounting hole. Do not forget replace the existing system after removal.

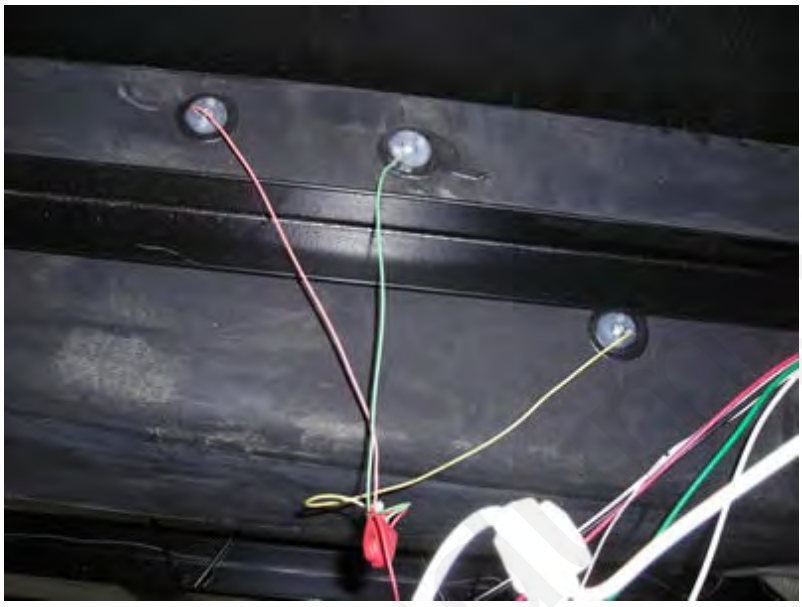
© 2006 - 2021 Sanidumps.com - All rights reserved.

In my case, the fresh water drain was installed after the cover was installed and therefore I had to cut the drain and re-install it after the undercarriage was put back as shown in the image below.

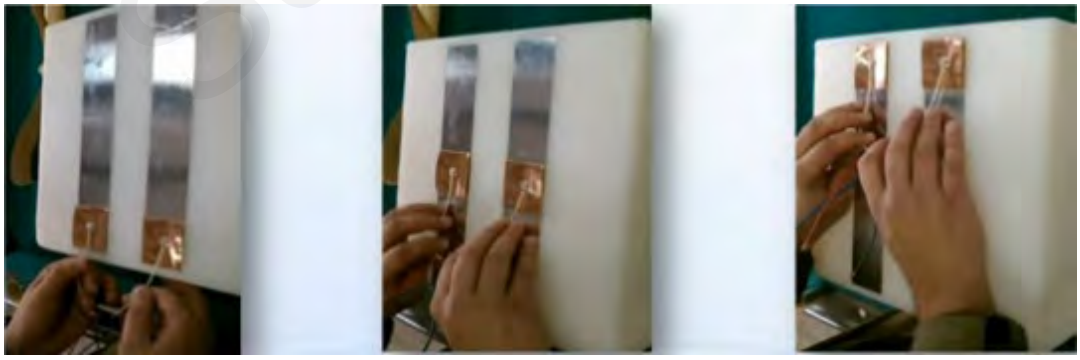
After exposing the bottom of the trailer, you will need to decide where to install the tank system monitor sensors. I have easy access at the discharge end of the holding tanks so this is where I chose to install the sensors. In the images below you can see the old sensors. If you look closely you can see that the sensors were not evenly spaced apart and therefore did not give an accurate 1/3 full, 2/3 full, and full readings.

© 2006 - 2021 Sanidumps.com - All rights reserved.





The new external sensors were installed at the discharge end of the holding tanks which I felt was the best place for accurate readings but it wasn't the best place for taking a picture of them. Therefore I have borrowed the photo from Tech-Edge to show the install. The key part here is that there are 2 sensors per tank and each sensor requires a metal conductive strip (supplied) that covers the vertical height of the tank and each sensor is placed on these 2 metal foils. As it is measuring the levels through the tank walls via electrical conduction, these strips are required to cover 15-40 square inches each.



In my case, my tank height is 7 inches. The the metal foil is 2 inches wide. To get the appropriate surface area I needed to apply 2 strips of foil, 6 1/2 inches long with a 1/2 inches overlap making the strip 3 1/2 inches wide by 6 1/2 inches. Therefore my surface area per sensor contact is now 22 3/4 square inches and within required specification. Each tank will have 2 such metal foils, one for each sensor on the tank. The sensor can be placed anywhere along these foils as seen in the image above.

Each sensor has five wires: two white wires with copper contacts which are placed onto the sensor foil, a black wire (sensor) which is connected to all other sensors and then attached to your RV frame, a red wire (sensor) which is connected back to the monitor wiring harness, and a blue wire (sensor) which is connected to the wiring harness as per instructions.

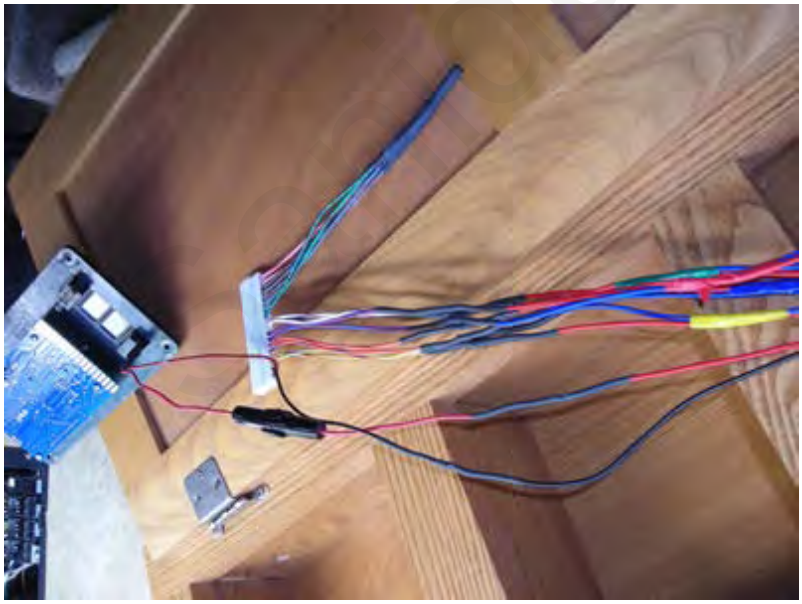
Looking closely at the wiring harness which is connected to the monitor panel you can see (from the right side of the image below) a red wire. This will be connected to the monitor off/on switch which is connected to the power source or battery positive side. The next wire from the right is a black wire (negative) which is connected to all the black wires of the sensors and is connected to the RV frame. Follow the instructions on connecting the rest of the wires to the wiring harness.

Having a wire harness makes it easy to pre wire the RV and not have the monitor panel banging around on the side wall of your RV while you make the wire connections. Since I will be installing four sensors and each sensor has three wires, there will be a several wires to keep track of.

The images below show the three wires connected to a sensor. I decided to solder and heat shrink each connection (this is not required and the kit contains crimp connectors). For keeping track of each sensor I wrapped the three wires with colored tape every four feet (Red, Green, Yellow, and Blue).

© 2006 - 2021 Sanidumps.com - All rights reserved.

You may feel overwhelmed by all the wires but if you follow the steps, it's very easy to do. The image below shows the black negative wire, the red positive wire with the inline fuse, the four sensors each with a color tape which made it easy to not mix up the wires. The wire harness is not connected to the monitor in this image. When connecting the harness it's easy to do and only connects one way. The unused sensor wires were insulated and held together with a large heat shrink tubing for future use. My current propane tanks do not have the LPG or 90 ohm unit, this could be a future project.



The finished project with the monitor showing an empty Grey #2 holding tank.

© 2006 - 2021 Sanidumps.com - All rights reserved.

Configure the Monitor

The next step after installing the tank monitor is to configure the display screen. The unit I installed can monitor up to four tanks and four propane/fuel tanks. There are other configurations available from the manufacture to meet your individual needs.

The instructions take you step by step through enabling tank sensors, naming your tanks for the display, and configuring any alarms you may want to have. I used "Grey No. 1", "Grey No. 2", "Fresh Tank", and "Black Tank" for our tank names. There are many choices for naming your tanks depending on your personal needs.

Calibrating the Monitor

The calibration requirement is very simple. You need to calibrate the sensors with the tanks being empty and full. Since my tanks were empty already, I calibrated it for empty first and then I filled the tanks with water and calibrate it for full.

That's it; you're calibrated and ready to go RVing. It should also be mentioned that your RV should be level while calibrating.

In my case, I have left the old monitoring system intact and powered for initial comparison and for use in our seminar presentation and demonstration. Most RVers would not require to keep the old system in place.

Finally, see the Tech-Edge Manufacturing online video for calibrating the sensor.

Results

Initial

We normally carry minimal fresh water to reduce weight and improve fuel efficiency.

On our first RV trip with the new tank monitor, we wanted to leave home with approximately 1/3 full of fresh water since were climbing mountain passes and I didn't want to be hauling the extra weight of water.

While filling the water tank I was comparing the old system with the new system. The old system was reading 1/3 full while the new system showed only 18% full.

33% does not equal 18% and my wife had mentioned in the past that the last 1/3 of the fresh water tank disappeared very fast with the old monitor system. This is most likely caused by the uneven spacing of the old sensor probes. The approximate difference on a 50 gallon tank would be 16 1/2 gallons (new system) to 9 gallons (old system); that is quite a difference.

I continued filling the fresh water tank until the new sensor read 30% full.

I noticed that the new tank sensors are very sensitive. When displaying the fresh water tank reading, if I shook the RV, the reading will change with the water movement in the tank. As mentioned in the instructions, "the readings may be somewhat sensitive to the pitch of the vehicle (due to the fluid sloshing either against or away from the sensor elements mounted to the tank wall)". This was visibly evident on our first trip.

© 2006 - 2021 Sanidumps.com - All rights reserved.

Two Months Later

After a few more trips in the RV I found that we do not use the old system for checking the tanks anymore. The new system is far superior to the old system and I can't imagine being without it.

Some of the other benefits we see are:

- Ability to extend our dry camping trips without fear of running out of fresh water or overflowing our grey or black tanks.
- Ability to carry just enough water when traveling, which improves mileage, ride, road safety.
- Ability to set alarms when your tanks are either getting low or nearing full.
- Reducing stress on the holding tank mounts and RV frame as we do not drive with excess amounts of water in our tanks.

The additional cost of Tech-Edge System is less than 1% when compared to a typical cost of an RV these days. In my opinion, the Tech-Edge system is well worth the cost given all the benefits.

Happy RVing,

John

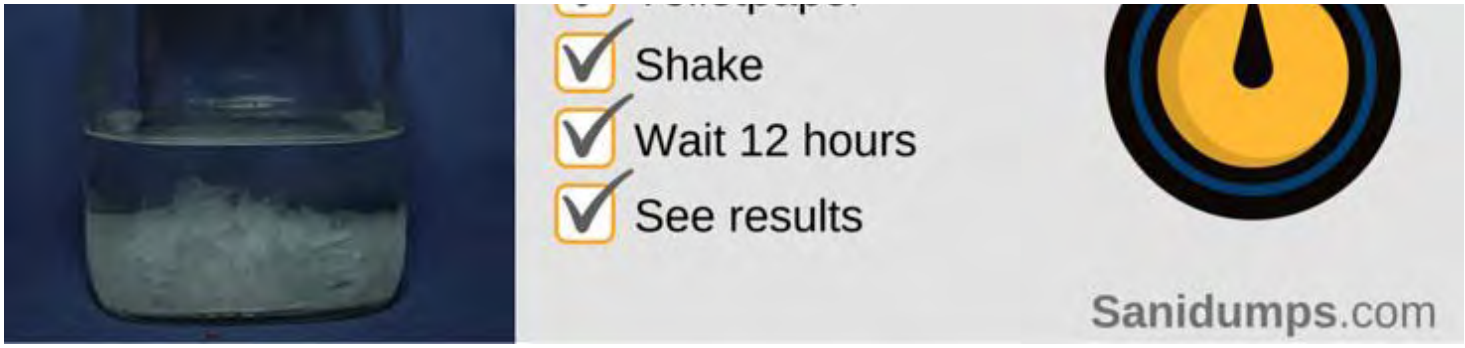
RV Toilet Paper Test (TPT)

© 2006 - 2021 Sanidumps.com - All rights reserved.



Have you ever wondered about what type of toilet paper you should use in your RV?

Have you heard that you can only use single ply RV toilet paper?

We did! And we wanted to find out more for ourselves.

Steps for a TPT

- Grab a canning jar with a lid
- Pour in one (1) cup of room temperature water
- Place one (1) sheet of TP in the canning jar with the water
- Tighten the lid and give the jar one (1) shake
- Let stand on the counter for one (1) hour
- Check the jar every few hours to see how the TP is braking down, there should be significant results within 12 hours
- Extra shaking of the jar isn't required, your RV isn't doing a lot of shaking unless you are traveling along a very curvy road

Expected results will vary. Some three (3) ply TP will break down faster the one (1) ply TP. Some RV brands of TP do not break down very well at all while others break down very quickly. Some TP brands that were originally 'RV Friendly' are no longer 'RV Friendly' due to the manufacture changing something in how it is manufactured.

We have found that 'RV Friendly' toilet paper is the best TP for the RV.

RV Toilet Paper Test (TPT) Results

We have tested multiple different brands of toilet paper. Below are some images of our own toilet paper tests. One brand of TP breaks down very well and is 'RV Friendly' compared to the other Non 'RV Friendly' brand.

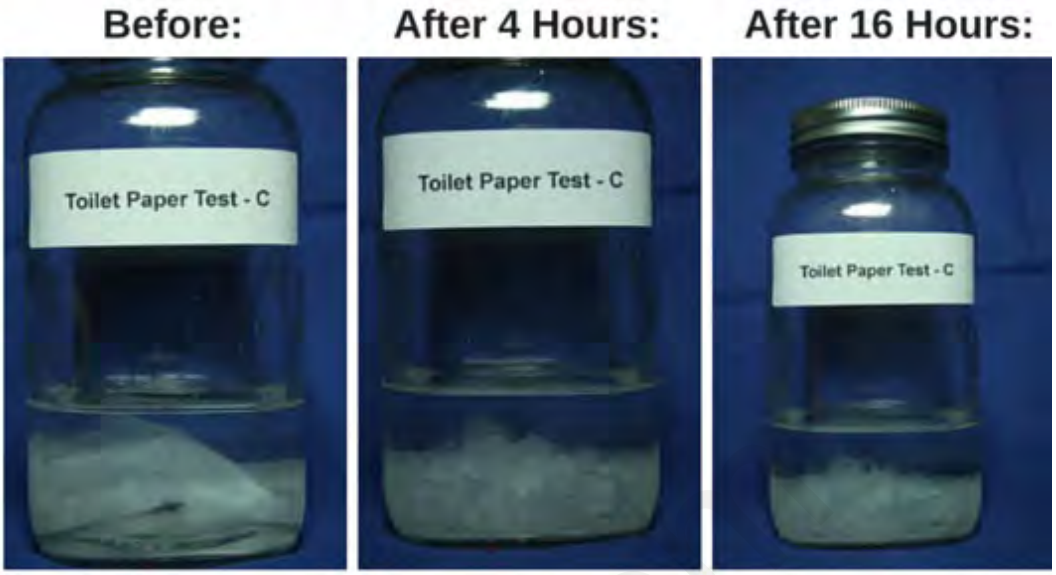
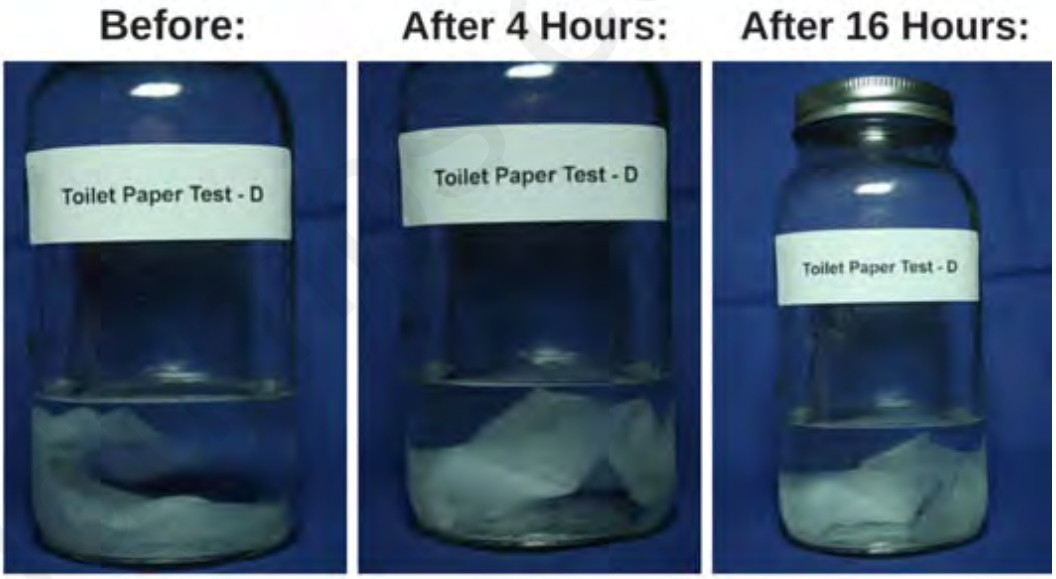
'RV Friendly' Toilet Paper



Non 'RV Friendly' Toilet Paper



RV Friendly TP

Sanidumps.com

What makes a toilet paper 'RV Friendly'?

In our experiences a 'RV Friendly' toilet paper will break down quickly (less than two days) without a lot of agitation (shake only once), it does not have a tendency to stick on the walls of the holding tank (after doing hundreds of demonstrations we noticed that some TP has a tendency to stick to the jar side walls), it has a comfortable feel for use, and it is safe for septic tank systems. Oh yes, it also has to be reasonably priced.

Toilet Paper Test Conclusion

There are many brands of toilet paper that can be called 'RV Friendly' that aren't necessarily advertised as an RV toilet paper, and some TP that is advertised as RV toilet paper but does not pass our TPT. We encourage you to do your own test and select an appropriate brand that meets your needs and budget.

Another factor that should be considered is the tendency of the TP to stick to the side walls of the holding tank. After doing this demonstration many times we have found that some TP has a greater tendency to stick to the side walls which will cause your holding tank sensors to read incorrectly (Hint - fill the holding tank with water until full before flushing whenever possible or dump when more than 2/3 full).

The Sanidumps.com Team has been doing these TPT's for many years at RV shows, seminars and rally's and it is amazing the number of RVers that are very interested in the results of the TPT.

Happy RVing!

Toilet Paper 1857

American Joseph Gayetty invented toilet paper in 1857. Gayetty first marketed toilet paper on December 8, 1857 which originally sold for US$0.50 in packs of 500 bearing a watermark of his name.

Update November 2012

I have now tested over thirty different brands of toilet paper and retested some brands that had tested before that now have a new and improved version of their previous toilet paper. I have also been demonstrating how to do the RV Friendly toilet paper test for many years at RV shows, rallies, and dealer events.

I now know that I can not trust the labeling on the toilet paper packaging. Why?

I've tested RV brands of toilet paper that do not break down with the RV Friendly test and that there are RV brands that do break down very well. There are brands of toilet paper that are label 'safe for septic tanks' and once again I have found brands that are RV Friendly while others that are not RV Friendly. There are brands that are not labeled as septic tank friendly or as a RV brand that do break down very well with the RV Friendly test. I have also found that the number of ply's the toilet paper has nothing to do with the results, there are three ply TP that break down better than one ply TP.

© 2006 - 2021 Sanidumps.com - All rights reserved.

I'm left with the conclusion that you must test the toilet paper to see if it is RV Friendly as the labeling and number of ply's has nothing to do with the results of a RV Friendly TP test.

John Clarke - Sanidumps.com Team

Update June 2013

While presenting RV seminars at a RV show, I met Jason and Nikki of Gone With the Wynns. Nikki asked if I had tested the Seventh Generation toilet paper? I have tested over thirty brands but Seventh Generation was not one of the brands tested.

I then contacted Seventh Generation and asked if they would supply some toilet paper for testing, the RV Friendly TP test. Sefton Hirsch with Customer Service promptly sent off some TP for testing.

I have now completed several tests (looking for repeat results) and have found that the Seventh Generation toilet paper does break down quickly and does not have tendency to stick on test jar walls. The TP is also reasonably priced when ordering in larger quantities. The fourth test, 'your spouse should like it', well that's is a personal item which only your spouse can answer.

John Clarke - Sanidumps.com Team

Update March 2020

I have now tested about 40 different brands (over 14 year span) of TP. Some interesting findings are that some TP that has tested RV Friendly before no longer test RV friendly :-(so remember to retest your TP every year.

I'm also seeing more and more YouTube videos stating that you must use RV TP for your RV. Obviously they have never tested TP and have not seen this webpage.

I have tested different RV TPs that are RV Friendly and NOT RV Friendly, so a label stating it is RV TP has little value if it is OK for RV use.

Product Review - Correct Track II Bolt-on System

John's Report

 See Company Information Update/Change Below

My fifth wheel trailer is only three years old and I have nearly worn out six tires, two on the front and four on the rear, all unevenly.

History

I picked up the RV in Indiana and delivered it home. We took a few smaller trips in the following years and I had not noticed any uneven tire wear. If I had used a tire wear gauge I would identified the issue. I have never done so in the past.

For our big trip for 2010, starting in British Columbia we would head south to Colorado then east to Nova Scotia and back to British Columbia through three provinces and twenty states.

While at a RV dump station dumping the holding tanks in southern Colorado, I noticed that the rear tires of the trailer were wearing a lot more on the inside than the outside. This is not good!

So thinking the axles were out of alignment, I found the nearest location to align the trailer axles in Northeast Arizona. Even though I could see the problem was with the rear tires wearing, I had the alignment shop align both axles. Due to lack of tread on the inside part of the rear tires, I replaced the rear tires.

Off we went, this time, I was checking the tires every hundred miles or so, to see if there was any uneven tread wear. None was observed. In Nova Scotia, I could see that the rear tires were wearing on the inside again! I couldn't find a shop that could align the RV, but I did find a shop that worked on large trucks. They did not see any issues but they were not alignment shop.

I continued our trip while monitoring the tires at each stop. I decided that I would replace all four tires at the end of this trip and monitor the new tires with a tread gauge. See current status of the tires below.

© 2006 - 2021 Sanidumps.com - All rights reserved.

Research

Searching on the internet I found that there were many other RVers with a similar problem with tire wear and getting the axles aligned didn't always solved the problem. I believe this is a common problem but most RV trailers do not exhibit it as they most do not have a lot of mileage. Most RV tires age due to damage due to UV then from tread wear. Many RVers blame their tire manufacturers rather than checking alignment. I needed to resolve this issue to ensure road safety for my family.

My search showed that there are two alignment methods currently been deployed. One, aligning the wheels to the frame which is how cars and trucks are aligned and second, aligning to the tow point (a king pin for 5th wheel and hitch point for trailers). Aligning to the pin was the right method for me as it eliminates any framing errors or king pin not centered correctly. I found the company Rieco Titan Products Inc. produces several products for the RV industry including the Correct Track II Trailer Correction Alignment Kit that enables you to align your axles to the towing point of your RV.

They recommended that you take initial measurements A, B, C, D as per diagram below after parking your RV on solid even ground. The first is to take your measurements on level ground. Taking measurements is a two person task. Make sure you drive straight before you stop to eliminate any side torque on the tires and the shackles are relaxed between the front and rear tires (the Y yoke is centered). Once the trailer was level, I used a plumb-bob to mark the location of the king pin on the ground. This marked the starting point for measurements A and B. I used a 12" square in front of the tire tread with long edge on the ground and short edge against the tire tread. This became the end points for A and B. For C and D, I measured from the center of front axle to center of rear axle. The locations on the axle are not that critical as long as one is consistent and repeatable.

The measurements 'A' and 'B' should be within 1/8" of each other (per Riecotitan Products Inc.) and the measurements 'C' and 'D' should also be within 1/8" of each other also. My measurements 'A' and 'B' were 1/2" out and the measurements 'C' and 'D' were 3/8" out.

Kit Contains

The kit weighs twenty-nine pounds and contains the following:

- Equalizer / Center hanger plates
- Spring hanger plates
- 2 x 3 x 1 7/8" spacers
- 1/2" 20 x 3 1/2" bolt
- 1/2" locking nuts
- 1/2" washers
- 9/16" x 4 " bolts
- 9/16" locking nuts
- 9/16" washers
- Correct Track cams with 9/16" hole

Installation

I found the video on the web site very helpful and recommend watching it more than once before you start to install the Correct Track Trailer Correction Alignment Kit. The instructions supplied are clear and easy to follow. The following are some of my notes that may help if you are DIY and installing the Correct Track II kit.

I then laid out all the parts to make sure nothing was missing but also to ensure that I'm familiar with the parts that I will be installing and that I don't have any "spare" parts left over when I'm finished - lol.

Normal installation requires you to install the kit on the center hanger similar to the ones installed at each ends. Since I have a MOR/ryde® suspension system on the trailer I do not want the replace the hanger between the two axles. I contacted Riecotitan Products Inc. and verified that I could continue the installation using the MOR/ryde® suspension system. The answer was yes you can install the Correct Track II system with the MOR/ryde® system and other suspension systems.

When working on your trailer suspension system you should always inspect tires, hangers and linkages for abnormal wear and tear. This should be a maintenance step at the start out of each RV season. Even though my trailer is only a few years old I was surprised with the amount of wear. Take a look at early warning sign below; can you see the elongation of the hole in the shackle link? The bolt is worn as well as it has worn the shackles. This would affect the tread wear too. Manny RVs have plastic bushings installed over the bolt to reduce this wear. Most RVers do not drive long distances and it works but for others that do drive their RVs like me, these plastic bushings are totally inadequate.

Since there was lots of wear with the shackle links and bushings, I replaced all the shackle links, shackle bolts, bushings and nuts. Below are images of some of the shackle parts, the other parts were of the same condition - poor and needing replacement! Six of the eight bushings were completely worn out as you can see below in the image!

Here's an image of the Correct Track II hanger installed. The designers of the Correct Track II systems made a 1/2" diameter slot to aid DIY installers (as it is more common drill bit unlike 9/16" diameter). My unit required a 9/16" diameter hole. This required me to align the hanger in the kit using the bottom bolt and mark the position of the top bolt. Using a round file, I expanded the slot area for the top bolt. This picture was taken before I adjusted or tighten the bolts.

Since the supplied brackets extend below the existing trailer hangers, my RV by two inches. As I mentioned earlier, I did not install the center hanger as I have Mor/ryde system installed instead of a center hanger. In order to level the trailer when towing, I had to adjust (raise) my king pin as shown below.

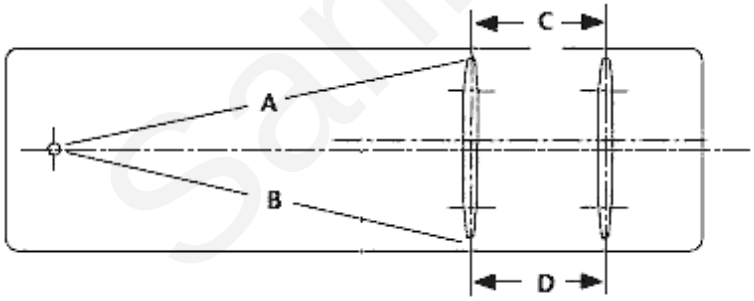
Results

The installation of the Correct Track II Trailer Correction Alignment Kit went very smoothly. The engineers at Riecotitan Products Inc. were very responsive in answering any questions. I installed the kit by myself over a two day period, it could have easily been installed in a day but I had to go to three places to find replacement shackle links, shackle bolts, and nuts.

During the installation I set each of the cams to the neutral position. After I installed the kit I re-took same measurements without making any changes to the cam settings.



Measurements: After installing the kit and cams in neutral/default position

(For easy comparison, all fractions of an inch is reported as in sixteenth)

A 236 8/16"

B 236 2/16"

© 2006 - 2021 Sanidumps.com - All rights reserved.

C 34 5/16"

D 34 2/16"

The difference between measurement A and B is 6/16".

The difference between measurement C and D is 3/16".

Measurements: After making the appropriate adjustment by rotating the cams

A 235 4/16"

B 235 6/16"

C 34 3/16"

D 34 4/16"

The difference between measurement A and B is 2/16" an improvement of 4/16".

The difference between measurement C and D is 1/16" an improvement of 2/16".

Your measurments most likely will be different, Correct Track II can adjust for an 1/2" at each hanger in 1/4" increments. So in theory you could move one side forward 1/2" and the other side backward 1/2" for a 1 inch correction.

Final touch - install Correct Track II decal.

Lastly, I have replaced my tires (see old tires above). The first short trip the trailer felt like it had less pulling resistance and tracked straighter behind my truck. Stay tuned for more long term usage data as I drive more miles.

Happy RVing,

John

I received an email from Robert asking for an update "How are your RV tires doing since the Correct Track II install". I hadn't measured the tire wear this year so I took out the tire tread gauge and measured the tires. I'm happy to see that the tires are wearing evenly :-)

Product Review - Axle Alignment Part Two

John's Report

Part one of the Trailer Axle Alignment report.

Axle Alignment Background

After my first experience with excessive and uneven tire wear that eventually pointed to axle alignment as the cause, I took action to resolve my problem.

Since then, I have met many other RVers having similar problems or worst, such as:

- Broken leaf springs
- Broken hangers and suspensions
- Cracked frames where axle bracket connect to frame
- Excessive trailer vibrations that shake the dickens out dishes, furniture and anything not tied down
- Poor fuel mileage
- Feeling the trailer is unsafe as it wonders on the road

My partner, KC was installing new tires on his RV after 23,000 miles (37,000 km) and since he had done work on his axles, he also got an axle alignment done. Trailer axle alignment is more than just aligning the two axles to each other. One needs to make sure that camber and toe-in are also set correctly.

This prompted us to speak with experts in West Kelowna, BC. They are experts at aligning axles for large trucks, Class A's, 5th Wheels, Trailers and even cars.

Protecting the investment in new tires that cost over $1,000 was important but more than that it was personal safety and others that was top of our mind. You can view KC's Axle Saga and see what he found with his RV trailer alignment.

RV Alignment Update July 2013

After a long RV trip of 6000 kms (3800 miles) in the fall of 2012, I noticed that the rear driver side tire on the trailer was wearing on the outside. Since then I have gone on several smaller trips (less than 1000 kms) and the tire was needing to be replaced.

It is amazing how fast a trailer tire will wear, once it starts to wear incorrectly.

I have the Correct Track System on the RV but I didn't get the chance to recheck the measurements and make any required adjustment(s) to the alignment during the winter. It wasn't the cold weather but the snow on the ground, not the ideal conditions to do these types of adjustments.

I made an appointment for the following week.

Alignment Appointment Date

My appointment was for 8:00 AM and I arrived ten minutes early, to my surprised they were ready and ask me to drive the truck and trailer to the rear of their complex where they guided the trailer into one of their service bays.

The front end of my RV was lowered, the alignment equipment is designed for semi trailers which are higher off the ground and lowering the front end of the trailer enables the equipment to be used with RVs.

The next step was to disconnect the truck from the trailer and attached the alignment rail to the front of the trailer, this alignment rail is squared with the RV.

The alignment guide attached to the front of the trailer which uses lasers for the alignment process.

This is the computerized alignment system which reports in real time any changes to the trailer alignment.

RV Alignment Results

The technician found that the passenger side of the trailer were align within specifications but the driver side was not aligned within specifications, which I expected as the rear driver side tire was wearing on the outside.

What I found surprising with the computer results was that the driver rear tire was aligned correctly; the computerized alignment system indicated that the driver front tire of the RV was the one out of alignment!

If I took the measurements manually, I would of been trying to adjust the rear tire as it was the one with the outside tire wear.

The technician said it was common for a front tire to be out of alignment and the bad tire wear showing on the rear tire.

With the Correct Track System installed on the RV the technician adjusted the front tire cam adjustment one setting and retested the alignment. All trailer wheels are now showing results within specifications.

I then had the rear tire replaced and since the alignment the rear tire is now wearing evenly.

The Correct Track System enabled me to correct the major alignment issues which I reported in part one but using a laser to make the final adjustments has proven to be beneficial over manually doing the measurements with a tape measure and a plumb-bob.

Happy RVing,

John

Product Review - KC's Axle Alignment Saga 2007-2013

KC's Report

Background for KC's Axle Saga

I have had four previous RVs, keeping each one for an average of 5 to 7 years, (two pop trailers and two travel trailers) and did not see a single issue with axles, unsafe trailering or abnormal tire wear. Therefore, I have never paid any particular attention to the undercarriage besides checking tire wear, repacking bearings and normal brake maintenance. I also never used my RV for more than 2 to 6 weeks per year although I did make several long trips. Over a 20 year period, I had only replaced one set of tires.

Before I go into my axle saga, I do want to mention that RV frames, suspensions, axles, mountings and tires undergo tremendous forces both vertically (uneven roads and pot holes) and horizontally (cornering and parking) as both wheels are fixed, unlike a motorized vehicle. These products are well designed to withstand these tremendous forces when properly specified and installed. Unfortunately, some manufacturers install parts that meet minimum specs to save cost or select a subpar OEM supplier or misapply the parts as you will see in my case.

© 2006 - 2021 Sanidumps.com - All rights reserved.

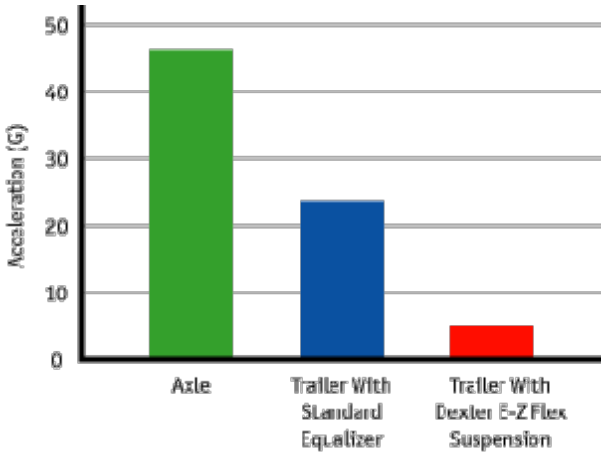
I purchased my current 35 foot 5th wheel in 2007 just after I retired. We spend anywhere between 6 to 18 weeks a year travelling and drive about 10-15,000 km per year. I soon started to see issues with my axles, wheels, tires and towing. Interestingly, the GVWR stated is 11,000 lb, with 5,000 lb dual axles and D-range tire (2840 lb). Keep in mind there is approximately 2,000 lb on the hitch pin. I was always feeling uneasy about the lack of safety margin. If there was any uneven loading side to side or front and back of the RV, one might easily exceed the axle rating or tire rating.

In 2008, Goodyear replaced all four tires due to excessive weathering and I took the opportunity to upgrade to E range tires (3000 lb). During the tire replacement process I noticed the nylon bushings on my Dexter axle linkages were wearing out. Then I started to see the linkage bolts wearing and the holes elongating, very similar to John's.

To correct this issue, I installed Dexter's E-Z Flex kit with bronze bushings with grease nipples, heavier yoke with rubber shock absorber and thicker linkages as shown:

Ride Performance - This graph depicts the accelerations experienced by a trailer and axle while going over railroad tracks at 30 mph. The Dexter E-Z Flex equalizer provides an 80% reduction to trailer vertical acceleration when compared to a standard equalizer.

© 2006 - 2021 Sanidumps.com - All rights reserved.



The net impact was a smoother ride, less chunking, virtually eliminating any movement of internal stuff in the RV and an increased peace of mind. The whole kit cost less than $300 and was very easy to install. I grease all the fittings at the start of every season.

In 2010, I received a notice from the manufacturer of the RV that they had issues with Dexter Nev-R-Lube axles burning the outside bearings. As it turned out the RV manufacturer had put -10 mm offset wheels when the axles clearly stated using zero offset wheels. Dexter volunteered a free replacement or an upgrade at cost. I seized the opportunity to upgrade my axles, u-bolts and Magnum gas shocks from 5,000 lb to 6,000 lb and to change the brakes from electric to hydraulic with an all disc system. After much research, I also opted to use EZ Lube axles instead of Nev-R-Lube. The additional cost was a little over $1,200 including all parts. I did the axle install and plumbing for the hydraulic system.

BOLT SIZE	GRADE 5 TORQUE	METRIC	GRADE 8.8 TORQUE
3/8	30 Ft. Lb.	8 mm	18 Ft. Lb.
7/16	54 Ft. Lb.	10 mm	36 Ft. Lb.
1/2	72 Ft. Lb.	12 mm	64 Ft. Lb.
5/8	150 Ft. Lb.	14 mm	103 Ft. Lb.
3/4	245 Ft. Lb.	-	-

© 2006 - 2021 Sanidumps.com - All rights reserved.

During this process I noticed that my original u-bolts were loose and upon further investigation, I found out that checking the torque on u-bolts is a maintenance item that no one talks about. Loose u-bolts could be a big safety issue. It is now on my annual maintenance checklist.

After installing the axles, I did do a measurement check to see if the axles were aligned using the method outlined in John's first report. Unfortunately, its accuracy is more like 1/4" rather than the required tolerance of less than 1/8".

I drove another 15-18,000 kms (approximate). During this time I had one tire blow out (front passenger side tire) which I replaced and I noticed my driver side front tire was wearing unevenly. I do rotate my tires at the start of each RV season to even out the wear which does make it difficult to diagnose problems.

I decided to replace all tires with Light Truck (LT) tires instead of ST trailer tires for 4 main reasons:

- LT tires have an additional 25% safety rating over the tire load rating while ST tires are rated as stated - no additional safety
- Maximum speed rating for ST trailer tires is 65 mph (104 kmh) while LT tires have speed rating to 99 mph (160 kmh)
- Price difference is approximately 15% more for LT tires compared to ST tires, for the same size and load range
- The Department of Transport does not require recalls on ST trailer tires
- Most trailer tires are now manufactured in China, there have been several quality control issues reported

During my LT versus ST tire investigation, I was also advised by a local auto/truck/RV shop, that I should do a proper wheel alignment. It was worth paying approximate $200 to maximize the tire investment and be safe on the road. I took my RV in with brand new balanced tires installed and the experts did an accurate wheel alignment (camber, toe, caster and roll). For trailers, caster is not critical as it does not have powered wheels.

© 2006 - 2021 Sanidumps.com - All rights reserved.

The laser equipment they use is highly accurate (see John's report for more details) and they give you a report on the measurement and the corrections they did.

After my first 800 km trip, I found that many items inside my RV had shifted while travelling (too much vibration and shock) which had previously not been an issue. Upon investigating, I found that I had too much air pressure (80 PSI) in my tires for the weight of my RV. Combined total weight the tires can handle at 80 PSI is 12,168 lb (+25% safety) but my RV loaded weighs less than 10,500 lb. Since you can adjust the tire pressure to the load (as per tire manufacturer's specifcations), I lowered my pressure to 72 PSI and the issue was resolved.

Conclusions

Since the tires are the only thing that keeps your RV on the road, road safety starts here. A little due diligence here can make your RVing experience problem free and safe for you and others around you. Here are some tips that I have learnt during the process:

- Always get your RV trailer tires balanced
- Have adequate load safety margins on tires, suspension, axles, brakes and frame
- Do not exceed any of your weight ratings, weigh your fully loaded RV (preferably at each tire, axle, hitch point), look for uneven loading and correct the issue
- Check for any wear on the suspension linkages, many original RV linkages are low cost and do wear out in the first few years, upgrade it with grease-able fittings
- Get an axle alignment at a reputable shop, you may need to get it rechecked if you hit a curb or a large pothole
- Check your torques for u-bolts, wheels and linkages
- Lube linkages and repack/lube your wheel bearings, check for play or burnt ball bearings
- Use tires with adequate safety margins

Here are some consequences of problems RVers run into if proper maintenance is NOT done:

Sanidumps.com

My trailer now tows smoothly with minimum chunking, excellent braking and minimum side to side rolling. I am expecting longer tread life for my tires and less stress during those long hot summer drives.

I highly recommend that RVers put the tires, suspension, linkages and axles in their normal maintenance schedule which includes a wheel alignment at least once and each time you feel you have hit something that could alter it.

Happy RVing,

KC
